USMBHC Now a Public International Organization

On December 21, 2004, President George W. Bush signed an Executive Order designating the U.S. – Mexico Border Health Commission as a public international organization for purposes of the International Organizations Immunities Act.

“The designation is necessary for effective operations,” said Eva M. Moya, Executive Director for the U.S. Section of the Commission. “This is a significant milestone for the organization and it reinforces the importance of binational collaboration and the integration of our work.”

The public international organization designation serves as an important incentive for the Mexican Government to grant similar privileges and immunities in Mexico.

“The designation as public international organization is a result of the leadership exercised by the Commission in support of a shared border,” said Héctor Xavier Martínez, Executive Secretary for the Mexico Section of the Commission.

With the designation as an international public organization, the Commission will be recognized as a legal entity under international and federal law; and through this recognition:

- The Commission and its officials would be entitled to such privileges and immunities as necessary to fulfill their mission;
- Foreign employees of the Commission could apply for G4 visas;
- Enjoy greater international and national recognition to leverage resources and funding for border health improvement.

2005 Border Binational Health Week Planning Underway

The Commission has begun planning for the 2005 Border Binational Health Week. A debriefing meeting to discuss the 2004 Border Binational Health Week took place in El Paso, Texas, on November 16. Representatives from the various institutions that collaborated on the Border Binational Health Week participated in this meeting.

A general overview of the events was presented. In regards to the planning of the 2005 BBHW, several ideas were proposed:

- Analyze the results of the 2004 Border Binational Health Week;
- Contact the programs along the border that have carried out similar activities and invite cooperation;

- Define the regional committees early in the process to facilitate joint planning;
- Strengthen binational collaboration;
- Emphasize the benefits of the BBHW;
- Create a dissemination subcommittee specifically dedicated to work with the media; and
- Identify sites and dates of the inaugurations and closures early so that the media is informed.

The BBHW steering committee met again on January 12 in the Commission’s central office. The meeting, co-chaired by Commission Executive Directors Eva Moya and Lic. Héctor Martínez and Mr. Frank Cantu. Primary topics included the structure of the committee and the roles and responsibilities of the sub-committees, which will enable them to move forward in a more effective, efficient and proactive manner.

The group also identified key partners with expertise in binational collaboration and discussed strategies to move forward with the planning of 2005 Border Binational Health Week.

The Co-chairs announced that the final report for 2004 BBHW would be available this February.

Thompson Resigns as U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services Commission Extends its Thanks for His Years of Dedication

The Commission extends its sincere appreciation and best wishes to the Honorable Tommy G. Thompson, who served as Secretary of Health and as the U.S. Commissioner for four years. Thompson announced his resignation in December.

As Health and Human Services Secretary, Thompson was the nation's leading advocate for health and welfare. During his tenure, Thompson launched major initiatives to strengthen the nation's preparedness for bioterrorism attacks, increased the funding for the National Institutes of Health, reorganized Medicare and Medicaid services to encourage greater responsiveness and efficiency, and focused attention on disease prevention in critical health areas, such as obesity, diabetes and health disparities.

As the U.S. Section Commissioner, Thompson employed an action-oriented style of leadership and invested a great deal of his time and resources into border health. He obtained significant resources for the border, most notably the multimillion-dollar award for border security, which has brought about excellent results.

Thompson focused the attention of the Department of Health and Human Services agencies, such as Health Resources and Services Administration, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Interagency Action Team on Border Health, on the issues that affect border health.

Thompson's imprint on the Commission has been indelible. The manner in which he reached out to Mexico's Secretary of Health, Dr. Julio Frenk Mora, and built a solid friendship truly unified the Commission.

Thompson has been an invaluable leader and the Commission truly hopes he will continue to support border health in his future endeavors.

Michael O. Leavitt Confirmed as New Secretary of Health and Human Services

On December 13, 2004, President George W. Bush named Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Michael Leavitt to succeed Tommy G. Thompson as Secretary of Health and Human Services. He was sworn in as the 20th Health Secretary on January 26, 2005.

Leavitt was sworn in as the 10th Administrator of the United States Environmental Protection Agency on November 6, 2003, after serving as the governor of Utah for 11 years. Bush credited him with improving children's access to health services during his tenure in the state.

As a pioneer of collaborative environmental management, Leavitt helped clean up the air over the Grand Canyon. He served as vice-chair of the Grand Canyon Visibility Transport Commission and co-chair of the Western Regional Air Partnership.

Leavitt is also a nationally recognized leader in the areas of health care and welfare reform. During his three terms as Utah governor, he was chosen by the nation's governors to represent states in working with Congress on welfare reform, Medicaid and children's health insurance. The Children's Health Insurance Program helped reduce the uninsured rates for children in Utah to its lowest point ever. His administration worked to increase the number of Utahans with health insurance by 400,000, improve immunization rates by nearly 75 percent, increase collection of child support and dramatically improve the child welfare system.

Leavitt graduated with a bachelor's degree in economics and business from Southern Utah University. He is married to Jacalyn S. Leavitt and they are the parents of five children.

Dr. Sánchez-Vargas Named CDC Liaison to the Commission

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services announced in November 2005 the assignment of Dr. Carmen Sánchez-Vargas as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention liaison for the USMBHC. In this role, Dr. Sánchez-Vargas will assist the Commission with its Healthy Border 2010 initiative and the Border Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS). She will also work to advance collaboration between the CDC and the USMBHC.

Dr. Sánchez-Vargas' scope of work will specifically be to:

- Identify border-related studies, reports and data that is to be shared with appropriate CDC programs;
- Identify experiences which could be shared between the United States and Mexico, such as achieving high immunization rates, despite increasingly complex vaccine schedules; and
- Assist the CDC to more effectively connect to its Mexican partners in the border region.

Dr. Sánchez-Vargas' formal education spans medicine, occupational and environmental health, applied epidemiology, public health training and communications in public health.

Commission Welcomes Janis Elaine Borton

The Commission extends a warm welcome to Janis Elaine Borton, who came on board in February as the Healthy Border 2010 Program Manager for the U.S. Section.

Ms. Borton earned a master's degree in public health from Indiana University and is a certified health education specialist. She has worked in health promotion and chronic disease prevention for more than 15 years. Ms. Borton began her career as a public health educator, designing and teaching courses on diet and weight control, tobacco cessation and stress management. As the community health education section chief for the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment, she bridged national chronic disease prevention initiatives with local communities and governmental agencies.

Due to her interest in public policy, Ms. Borton went on to serve as the health promotion program manager for the National Conference of State Legislatures. During her tenure, she organized and facilitated four multi-state institutes, including the U.S.-Mexico Border States Health Promotion Policy Institute.

Ms. Borton most recently served as a U.S. Peace Corps volunteer in Kingston, Jamaica, working as a strategic planning, monitoring and evaluation specialist for Jamaica AIDS support.

New Direction for Salud Para su Corazón Program

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute (NHLBI) and the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) established a partnership in 2001 to bring The Salud Para Su Corazón (SPSC) program, translated as Health for Your Heart, to the U.S.-Mexico Border region.

The SPSC program promotes healthy behaviors that reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease by raising awareness and transforming attitudes about cardiovascular health. The expansion of the program to Community Health Centers (CHC) facilitates the opportunity to connect the primary health care clinics to SPSC's outreach strategy.

The NHLBI, HRSA and CHC teams from Centro San Vicente, El Paso, Texas; Gateway Community Health Center, Laredo, Texas; Mariposa Community Health Center, Nogales, Arizona; and North Country Health Center, San Marcos, California, gathered recently for a two-and-a-half day workshop. The workshop, entitled "Salud Para su Corazón: Integrating Behavioral and Clinical Approaches for Sustaining Healthy Communities," was held on January 11-13, 2005. The teams from the CHC defined and integrated a set of promising practices, and developed guiding principles to measure the effectiveness of SPSC projects in reducing cardiovascular disease risk factors and promoting behavioral and clinical outcomes.

Planning begins for 2005 VWA/NIIW

The Commission, in collaboration with the CDC and PAHO, met on December 6, 2004 to initiate planning for the 2005 Vaccination Weeks in the Americas (VWA) and National Infant Immunization Week (NIIW). Representatives from all of the border states were in attendance.

Regional reports were presented on the successes, lessons learned and opportunities. A summary of suggestions included:

- Improve communication with public health officers, to strengthen coordination and dissemination of related activities;
- Encourage private and public sectors involvement;
- Achieve a border-wide, binational and uniform message and provide materials with a lasting impression;
- Local media is key to a successful campaign;
- Coordinate the three weeks: spring with a Health Fair Celebration; summer with a Back to School Vaccination Awareness; and October with a focus on the adult/elderly population.

The proposed calendar of activities for 2005 was revised to reflect Mexico's vaccination weeks: February 19-25, May 21-27 and in October (to be confirmed).

Presentations were made by Kathe Gustafson from the San Diego County Immunization Program, Daniel Epstein from PAHO, and Dr. Miguel Angel Nakamura from Mexico Secretaría de Salud. These presentations are posted on the Commission's web site.

A concept paper that will unify the goals has been prepared and is available on the Commission's website at www.borderhealth.org.

The New Mexico Department of Health in partnership with CDC/NIP, Office of Border Health and the Commission outreach office in New Mexico and Juarez will host the 2005 VWA/NIIW on April 29-30. Dr. Paul Offit and Dr. Steve Cochi from the CDC will be keynote speakers. The New Mexico Immunization Coalition will host an award ceremony on April 29. The USMBHC Outreach Offices—A Vital Part

The Commission's outreach offices, located in all 10 border states, are the backbone of the USMBHC's important work in improving border health. They provide vital outreach programs and activities for border residents, as well as forge partnerships with other health agencies and persons interested in border health.

Each outreach office bases its activities and programs on the Commission's Healthy Border 2010 Program. The following is a summary of the U.S. outreach offices' work plans and activities for the upcoming year. A synopsis of Mexico's outreach offices' activities will be spotlighted in the next issue of the Commission's newsletter.

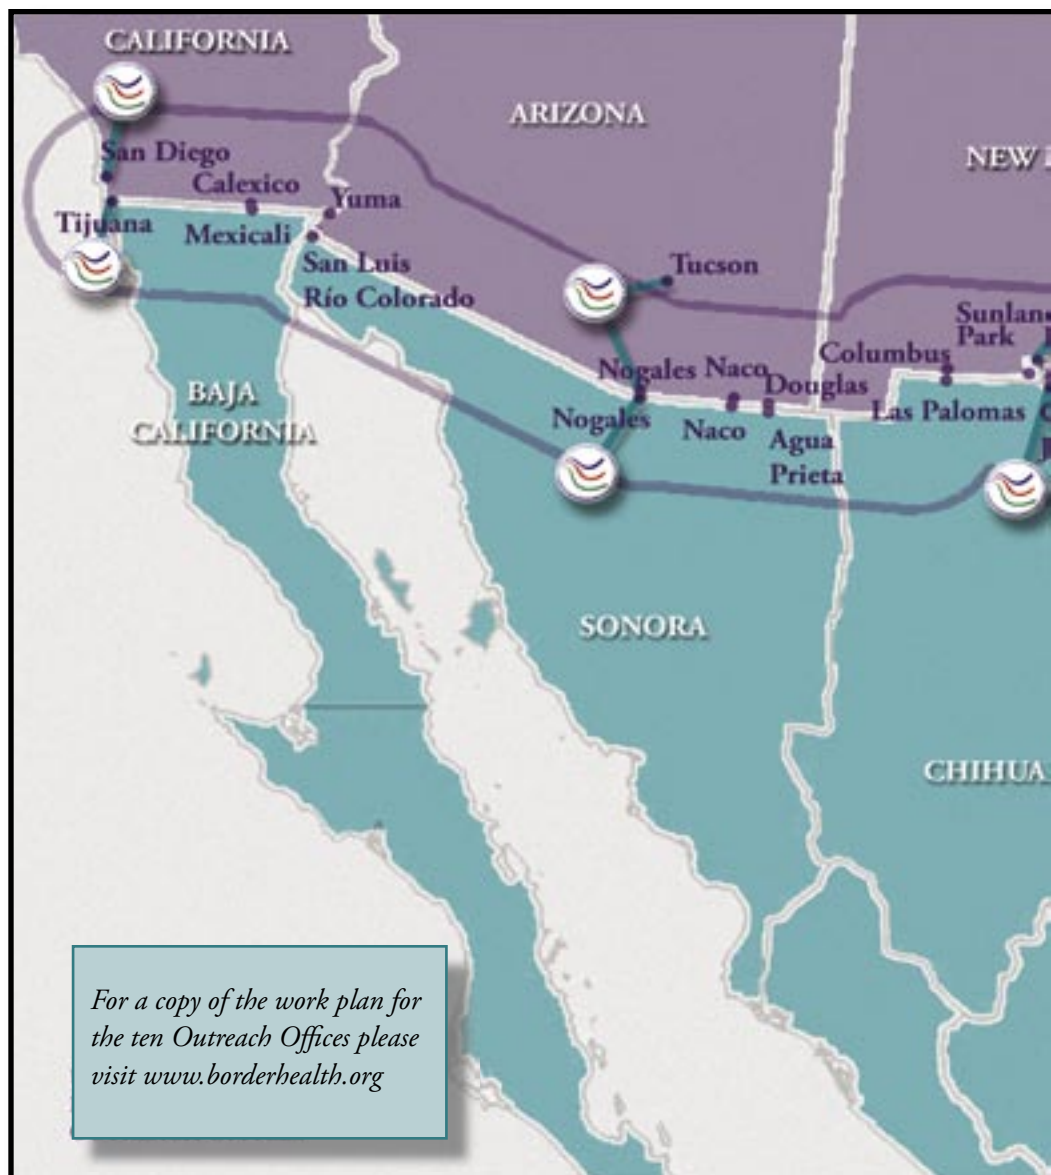

California Outreach Office

The primary goals of the California Outreach Office's work plan are to support and coordinate the Commission's objectives and to develop outreach health activities along the California and Baja California border. The work plan includes activities in the following four areas:

- Outreach and health promotion;
- Evaluation and assessment of health services;
- Health data analysis and surveillance; and
- Administrative support for the members/staff of the commission.

This year's planned focus themes are: immunizations and infectious diseases (TB and HIV/AIDS); respiratory diseases (asthma control); accidents and injuries; access to health care; migrant health; diabetes and substance abuse control.

The outreach office will also coordinate ongoing communication with the Baja California Outreach Office and provide administrative support for border-wide Commission activities.

Arizona/Sonora Outreach Offices

The goal of the Arizona-Sonora Outreach Offices' joint binational work plan is to progress toward strengthening and supporting current binational public health projects/programs along the Arizona-Sonora border. In collaboration with the Arizona Department of Health Services Office of Border Health, the Secretaría de Salud de Sonora, this work plan targets activities in the following areas:

- Assessment and research;
- Data analysis;
- Public information, promotion and communication; and
- Healthy Gente/Healthy Border 2010 Program activities.

Outreach and health promotion activities will assist in establishing or strengthening linkages between public health and border communities. The offices will continue to provide administrative, technical and outreach support to the Arizona and Sonora delegation.

of the Plan for Improved Health on the Border

Texas Outreach Office (TORO)

The overarching goal of the TORO is to implement the Healthy Border 2010 (HB 2010) program in the Texas-Mexico border region. To achieve this goal, the TORO will monitor the progress in the HB 2010 objectives, will help communities to implement programs to improve the health of border residents and will publicize achievements and challenges in border health. The TORO will continue the implementation of appropriate community-based activities to address HB 2010 objectives, including the structure of the health care system, available resources and other issues.

The TORO will direct available resources to three main topic areas:

- Assessment / Evaluation of border health data (county health profiles, hospital discharge, disease mortality/morbidity, border county specific BRFSS, etc.);
 - Mobilize, enhance and create local capacity in the Texas border counties and municipios in Mexico including: technical and administrative assistance to the seven Texas-Mexico Sister-City Binational Health Councils; and maintenance of the Binational Border Health Information System in the three major Texas-Mexico target areas (including integration of the Texas Health Alert Network); and
 - Sustain the Healthy Border 2010 mini-grant program for border communities that meet criteria related to the HB 2010 priorities and measurable health objectives. Priority will be given to funding proposals that address the following HB 2010 topic areas: access to health care; physical fitness, nutrition and obesity; environmental health; immunization and infectious disease; and bioterrorism preparedness.
- (For contact information, see page 8.)*

New Mexico Outreach Office

The primary goal of the New Mexico work plan is to preserve and enhance the health of the border population along the New Mexico-Chihuahua border. The New Mexico Outreach Office will continue to support and coordinate the Commission's objectives in its area of influence. The program areas of this work plan will address:

- Assessment and research;
- Data analysis and support;
- Public information, promotion and communication; and

- Healthy Gente/Healthy Border program activities.

Outreach activities will include assisting in the development, assessment, evaluation and improvement of activities/programs related to Healthy Gente objectives in the New Mexico region, and encouraging community support for local and binational programs, projects and agencies that meet the Healthy Gente/Health Border objectives.

The New Mexico ORO will continue to provide promotion and communication support to community projects and initiatives.

World Health Day to be Celebrated on April 7

Make Every Mother and Child Count

Each year on April 7th, the world celebrates World Health Day. It is a day to mark the importance of health and productive lives and raise awareness of the efforts needed by all to ensure life and good health.

The theme of World Health Day 2005 is Healthy Mothers, Healthy Children, with celebrations occurring across the globe. This year's slogan is "Every Mother and Child Count," emphasizing that healthy mothers and children contribute to healthy communities. The objectives of this coming year's celebration are:

- To raise awareness of the extent to which illness, suffering and death among mothers and children has on social, economic development;
- To increase the understanding of existing solutions; and
- To generate a movement toward collective responsibility and action.

To prepare for the April 7th celebration, PAHO organized a preliminary steering committee of U.S. organizations, both governmental and non-governmental, on December 14, 2004. The U.S.-Mexico Border Health Commission was invited to participate in the committee as an important binational presence. The steering committee met again in January to map out plans and begin strategizing to advertise the week.

Outreach Offices and Offices of Border Health Meeting

The U.S. Section hosted a meeting for border health officers, outreach office directors and coordinators on Jan. 19 at the Commission's central office. The purpose of the meeting was to continue to strengthen partnership and collaboration between the outreach offices, border health offices and the Commission central office. The outreach offices presented updates on the progress of their work plans. The meeting also featured a presentation from JoJean Elenes, of the Mariposa Community Health Center, on the Border Women's Health Institute.

Commission's EWIDS Project Report

Major progress in the Commission's EWIDS Project was made during the fall of 2004. Among the major activities of the project:

- Project funds transfer documentation from the U.S. Section to the Mexico Section was completed.
- An annual report was produced and distributed.
- A workshop to review proposals from the six Mexico border states was held by the General Directorate of Epidemiology on December 3 in Mexico City.
- The Secretariat of Health of Mexico and the six Mexican border states submitted the Project implementation proposals.
- The Texas Department of State Health Services provided training to laboratory technicians from December 6-10.
- Project coordinators attended the Tohono O'Odham Trilateral Public Health Emergency Response Planning and Preparedness session that was held December 13-14. (To contact project coordinators, visit www.borderhealth.org or call 915-532-1006).

AMA Holds First Border Health Forum

On Saturday, December 4, 2004, approximately 130 delegates, executives and staff from Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, California and Colorado gathered for the first Border Health Forum at the American Medical Association's 2004 Interim Meeting of the House of Delegates in Atlanta, Georgia.

The meeting's aims were to contemplate and discuss the future role of the border state medical associations and the AMA, given the current and projected demographic and health care trends of the border region and the nation at large.

Steven Murdoch, Ph.D., a nationally renowned demographer, and Ms. Eva Moya, U.S. Section Executive Director of the U.S.-Mexico Border Health Commission, served as keynote speakers and as subject matter experts on the changing demographics of the United States and the resulting health care needs of the population. Dr. Rosemarie Johnson, Commission member also participated in the forum. Additionally, Ms. Moya spoke about the collaborative efforts of the U.S.-Mexico Border Health Commission and its efforts to provide international leadership to optimize health and quality of life along the U.S. - Mexico border.

Ms. Moya commended the AMA and the border states on their success in supporting international legislation that allowed for the formation of the Commission. She praised the support and involvement of physicians, in addition to national association and government leaders, for their involvement and support of the 2004 Border Binational Health Week. Ms. Moya also discussed population trends in the border region.

Federal and state leaders were invited to collaborate with the USMBHC to host a National Border Health Day, help the Commission succeed in meeting the Healthy Border 2010 Program goals, and to advocate for increasing border health investments and present the national impact of the border.
